Old Morosini Still Thrilling for His Late
Coachman's Blood, But Victoria is Happy and Defiant—She Realizes What She Has Done and is Glad of It—A Chapter of Unmitigated "Spoons."

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

New York, September 12.—Now that the eloquence of Miss Victoria Morosini and Schelling, the coachman, has become an old story, and their subsequent marriage by the Methodist clergyman on East Fifty-fifth street has become a settled fact, the excitement given place to gossip and speculation as to where the newly married couple have gone, and what will be the ultimate outcome of the alliance. Mr. G. P. Morosini remained at home yesterday, spending a great portion of the time sitting in the broad Plaza of his handsome mansion, in company with his personal friend, Mr. Canton, the banker. He was suffering from great mental excitement, and repeatedly Mr. Canton tried to pacify the old gentleman.

"News? No, I have none, he replied in answer to a question, but I am here waiting."

With a scowl on his face and his hands clenched, he seemed about to burst with rage as the name of Schelling was mentioned.

"Yes," he said, "on Mr. Brewster's recommendation, that man and my coachman, I thought him cruel to my horses. I hate a man who treats animals brutally. He always treated them well in my service, but I often saw him flog a horse with a whip on the horses I believe that he is now more reduced than his master until he is no longer fit to drive a carriage."

This is news that will make Mr. McCafferry happy. He can now be sad only on account that Sullivan did not come here to match himself against the youthful Pittsburgher. The champion, who by his own admission is not equal to the task, had been prepared to match McCoy against Dominick McCafferry. This is news that will make Mr. McCafferry happy. THE COST OF A QUEEN.

Something About the Salaries of the English Royal Household.

Cooks Who Get $3,500 and Confectioners at $1,500 a Year—Queer Figures Showing Queerer Facts.

Prizes New York City.

The Queen's court is composed of officers, subordinates, and attendants to the number of nearly a thousand, the majority receiving salaries that may be called more than liberal.

First and foremost comes the Lord Steward, who holds off a post salary of $10,000 a year. He is the principal officer of the court, and has jurisdiction over the entire household. All officers and servants connected with the court, except those in the Queen's chamber, chapel, and stable, are subject to his orders. He appears at court on all state occasions, and the subordinate officials of the household are appointed by him.

The active duties of the Lord Steward are performed by the Master of the Household, whose constant residence is within the precincts of the palace. Necessarily he has a large staff of officers to assist him, having full control over the domestic establishment. The salary of the master is $5,000 a year, and his private secretary receives $1,500 a year.

The Lord Treasurer ranks next to the Lord Steward, acts for him at all state ceremonies in case he is absent, and draws $4,500 a year; while to him has the Comptroller of the Household, who also is paid $4,500 and like-wise dices help.

The Bursar of Green Cloth is composed of the four above-mentioned officials and adjudicates on offenses committed in domestic parts of the palace, and to meet these requirements, they have a secretary at $1,500 a year, three accounting clerks at $1,000 a year, each, divers other clerks to the number of six, and one female assistant.

The clerk in the kitchen is an important functionary distinguished by the fact that he gets $3,500 a year and "found." Under him he has seven clerks to keep accounts, check goods as they are received, and give the necessary orders to the kitchen.

The chief cook's salary is $3,500 a year, and his four assistant cooks $1,250 each, with the privilege of each taking an apprentice, the latter having to pay a premium of about $1,000. There are six other assistant cooks, and twelve helpers of different kinds.

The head of the confectionery department of the kitchen receives $1,500 yearly; and his assistant $1,250, they having six assistants; in addition there are the pastry cook and baker, with four others, making three women having charge of the coffee-room. The larder is looked after in the "over" department, consisting of a yeoman and two assistants.

The chief butler receives $2,500 a year. He has an important position, inasmuch as he selects and buys all the articles used in the royal household. To properly arrange the table before the Queen's dinner is served there are two principal table dealers with $1,000 a year each, a second table dealer at $750, a third at $400, and a fourth at $250.

The least liberal salaries probably are those paid to the three yeomen having charge of the plate pantry, whose united salaries amount to but $2,150, while the values intrusted to them can be estimated to be worth from $10,000 to $12,000 a year, which may have six assistants.

The crew of her Majesty's court must be an arduous duty, as it is intrusted to no less than thirteen persons.

The first and second lamp-lighters receive $500 a year each and board, money, and have seven assistants.

The Court of the Marshals is a regular court of justice attached to the Queen's household, having jurisdiction over all places within twenty miles from Whitehall. The Lord Steward is the judge, and functions of the court are to administer justice between the Queen's domestic servants. This court was established by Henry VIII., and now costs the nation $9,620 a year, not including the salary of the chief of the police, this court (who is called Knight Marshal) $2,500, and his eight assistants, with $500 a year each.

On Maundy Thursday of each year, and twice a year in Scotland Yard, alms are distributed to the poor. The almonry is the office that looks after the Queen's charitable expenses, and the officers of which are called the Royal Grand Almoner and the Lord High Almoner. Both offices are honorary, but they have a secretary, who receives $1,750 a year, about half of which is distributed to the poor on Maundy Thursday.

The Lord Chamberlain receives $10,000 a year and the vice-Chamberlain $4,620. They superintend all the officers and servants belonging to the Queen, change the exchanges of bed-chambers, those being the crown of the stole, as well as the officers of the wardrobe. All entertainments given in the palace are under their care, and they have to audit all accounts connected with royal marriages, coronations, funerals, etc. The Lord Chamberlain is also a controller of accounts, an inspector of accounts, three clerks, and four messengers, their united salaries amounting to $15,500.

In this department also is the keeper of the Queen's Privy Purse, who receives a salary of $10,000 a year and a percentage on her Majesty's privy purse. He is the financial secretary to the Queen.

The mistress of the robes draws a salary of $2,500, and the groom of the chamber $4,000, with three assistants. There are also eight ladies of the bedchamber, who each in rotation wait on Her Majesty a fortnight at a time.

The Queen's maids of honor are eight in number, and receive $1,500 a year each. They attend in Maundy twice a year for a month, thus serving but three months.

Eight heralds-at-arms draw $200 a year apiece. These officers, now nominal, though in the days of the joust and tourney they were to "hold watch outside the royal tent in complete armor, with bow, arrows, sword and mace of office; and to capture any traitor about the court or other great criminal."

These heralds are three kings-of-arms and six heralds.

Last in the Lord Chamberlain's department are messengers innumerable, palace inspectors, nine housekeepers, sixty footmen, twenty linemen, twelve waiters, and two attendants to show the public through Windsor Castle, with salaries ranging from a nominal sum to $1,500.

The ecclesiastics, with their necessary following, attached to the household are many in number and of large salaries.

The list is as follows:—Dean and sub-dean of the Chapel Royal, St. James's; the clerk of the close, three deputy clerks, a resident chaplain, a close keeper, forty-eight chaplains in ordinary and ten priests in ordinary, with four chaplains, two preachers, and three readers for the chapel at Whitehall, Hampton, Windsor, and Kensington; also a choir of boys, four organists, two composers, a violinist, a sergeant of the vestry, and a master of boys.

For doctors, etc., $15,500 a year is paid.

The State Band, although it is seldom heard, costs $9,500 a year.

We next come to the Poet Laureate, who draws an imbursement from the State at the rate of $500 a year.

The Master of the Tennis Court does nothing, for which he receives $600 a year. After him, with nominal duties, come the Burgomaster and two wipers, whose salaries are $2,000 a year. A keeper of the keys in the Tower, an exhibitor of the jewels, a principal librarian in ordinary, a painter, and a surveyor of pictures.

During the reign of Henry VII, he instituted the Corps of Gentlemen Pensioners, composed of members of the highest families selected by himself. They bore this title until the accession of William IV., when the change to that of Gentlemen-in-Arms.

First and foremost comes the Lord Steward, who is paid a post salary of $10,000 a year.

The Master of the Hounds spends $600 a year.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1884.

The Veiled Prophet is evidently a subscriber to the Post-DISPATCH.

CONSIDERING that we have made the illumination a fixed fact, it seems to us that time has about come when we should decline a banquet, too.

FOUR old Fifth District. With the machine politicians of that district the little finger of FRANK JAMES is bigger than the whole body of Prosecuting Attorney WALLACE.

THE Republican does injustice to Mr. NEEDLES in saying that he contracts for convict labor at the rate of twenty-five cents per convict per day; it is twenty-seven cents.

BESIDES spreading the light of civilization over St. Louis and the adjacent regions, the Post-DISPATCH is the proximate cause of the material lighting of the city during Fair week.

IN Kansas City, Horse-car CORRIGAN, State Committee man MUMFORD and FRANK JAMES have fixed the primaries which are to settle the disputed Democratic nomination for Congress between GRAVES and WALLACE.

It is to be regretted that the question of opening the Exposition on Sunday has not been brought to the attention of the Directors. The interests they represent, as trustees for the people in a great industrial and educational enterprise, demand that it should receive attention.

THIS matter of opening the Exposition on Sunday we beg to call the attention of the directors to the judicious example set by Capt. SCOTT's "coons." That "coon did not stop to argue the point; he recognized the inevitable and "came down," and history has made him immortal.

THE experience of the Philadelphia Centennial in the question of Sunday opening should be conclusive. Philadelphia tried to keep the Exposition closed on Sunday, but had to give way before an overwhelming demand, urged by public sentiment and supported by pecuniary interests.

THE illumination of the streets is to be a part of the Veiled Prophets' Entertainment. That is a fixed fact. There is no time to be lost, however, and all who are interested in the success of this great municipal carnival want to put in their work between now and Monday. Subscribe at once and do not keep the committee忙.

WHILE the Jefferson City Convention was accustoming the Democracy of Missouri of sympathy with train robbers the Democratic bosses of the Fifth District were doing everything in their power to justify the accusation by fixing up the machine so as to down the able and public-spirited candidate whose sole offense is that he prosecuted the train robbers.

We have received a number of communications suggesting a popular subscription for the illumination fund, in sums ranging from $0 cents to $0.00. Why not start a dollar bank for this worthy object—allowing subscribers to exceed this sum to any extent they may desire. The Post-DISPATCH will gladly bank the cash and acknowledge the same from day to day.

We have received several letters from Pope County, Arkansas, complaining of the Globe-Democrat for saying that the days of Democracy in Arkansas were numbered, because a Democrat had been elected on an Independent ticket. We look on Arkansas to-day as the most promising State in the Union. We predict for Arkansas a most prosperous future, and we also predict that it will continue Democratic, and that as long as it does the Globe-Democrat will delight in misrepresenting it.

THAT antique and sturdy Roman virtue, which has nearly disappeared under the corruptions of modern city life, still lingers in Carondelet, where a serenade was given last night to a gentleman whose conjured record was considered rather too disgusting for public sentiment to endure. The serenade was undoubtedly a breach of the peace and a violation of those municipal ordinances whose authority extends even to the River des Peres, but we are bound to confess that our sympathy is with the serenaders.

A TEXAN gentleman is suing a sideshowman who recently exhibited in that great commonwealth, for breach of contract. This sideshowman, it appears from the pleadings, caused to be distributed a number of circulars bearing the picture of a double-headed calf. Exhibited to the surprise and astonishment and delight of the crowned heads of Europe and Asia. This edifying spectacle will be shown at Cross Timbers School House on the 20th of August. Come and bring your sweetheart. Admission, 50 cents. The picture of the double-headed calf on the circulars and upon the placards at the door of the school house, represented a vigorous and lusty animal in the act of nibbling herbage with one head while the other was employed in affording a purchase to the tongue which was licking the off-side of the beast.

THE old adage that it is an ill wind that blows nobody good, was illustrated by the cyclone in Wisconsin. This little sphyra, in spite of the fact that it knocked down houses and barns and destroyed property in every direction, will be

With the understanding that he would be shown this strange brute the Texan paid McJILTON fifty cents and entered the school. There was exhibited to him the pelt of a dead calf stuffed with straw, upon whose neck a large wet or windfall reposed which had been magnified by the vivid imaginations of the artist and showman into a second head. The point for the court to decide is a very nice one. If the circus and sideshow pictures are contracts there will be a great blow delivered at American art which in the rural districts finds its chief expression in this direction. On the other hand it is the business of the courts to protect the guileless Texan. We shall watch the outcome of this controversy with much interest.

CROWNED WITH SUCCESS.

The chief question in connection with the exposition which was left unsettled at the opening was the question whether the attendance would be in keeping with the display. That question was finally settled last night. The magnificent naves and ample spaces were well filled. It was the first cool weather since the opening, and the visitors supplied the only feature that had been lacking.

The Exposition is, beyond any doubt, the finest thing St. Louis has ever had. There is a harmony about the varied features of its success which is artistic in its completeness. The building seems to be perfectly adapted to its purpose; the display is a surprise even to those who best know the resources of St. Louis; and, finally, we are now assured that the public support will be all that could be desired. Of all sights, novelties and attractions possible, the greatest and chiefest, the most varied and attractive is a human crowd. One can see all there is to any other display, but, take a modern crowd of well-dressed, happy, pleasure-seeking men and women—and the spectacle is irresistible in its fascination, and inexhaustible in its gratifications.

We beg to congratulate the directors, to congratulate the exhibitors, to congratulate the stockholders, and, above all, to congratulate the people whose approval has crowned the effort to success. Our only regret is that next Sunday the beautiful building, with all its possibilities of innocent amusement, rich instruction and deep delight, will remain closed, and thus tens of thousands, who could have visited it on that day and who can visit it on no other, will be shut out from its advantages and be compelled to pass by its doors with a sense of disappointment because they are permitted to look only at the outside walls.

SKULLDUGGERY.

We have not hesitated to condemn the excesses and follies of the misguided Republican convention in the question of Sunday opening should be conclusive. Philadelphia tried to keep the Exposition closed on Sunday, but had to give way before an overwhelming demand, urged by public sentiment and supported by pecuniary interests.

THE illumination of the streets is to be a part of the Veiled Prophets' Entertainment. That is a fixed fact. MISS CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG is at Birmingham, Conn., with her parents, and will remain there some weeks.

PRINCESS LOUISE of Lorraine is now in surprise in cognito at Gastein, calling herself Lady Cowell and taking the waters.

A NEWPORT belle wears fifty-two bangles on one of her bracelets. They are made of gold coin and are worth $100 to $200 each.

MRS. HATTIE A. PAUL, a young woman 18 years old, who has been for three years on the editorial staff of the Memphis Schreiber, now has entire control of the paper.

REPUTATION says that Mrs. PAUL is a "Lockwood," the latest candidate for President, looks like the late Mrs. Lydia Pinkham. This is probably a camping slander.

MISS HOOPER, daughter of the United States Vice-Consul in Paris, has determined to enter the theatrical profession, and has accepted an engagement with Augustin Daly.

MISS EVA MACRAE, who is to marry Prince Colonna, is of her father's size, is of small stature, with an unassuming, nice, quiet manner, is good looking and has aristocratic tastes.

MISS MARGARET, the wife of the English Premier, holds her face remarkably well. She does not look over 20, although she is nearer 35. Her hair is almost black, and her face is almost free from lines and wrinkles.

THE Baroness Burdett-Coutts, who a few years ago was the richest woman in the world and gave up a large portion of her wealth to many a young Mr. Bartlett, is described as a small, slight and very round shouldered old lady of 60, while her husband is a fine, manly-looking fellow of 32 or 33.

MISS MIRIAM Mifflin, a grand-daughter of the late Commodore Vanderbilt, has become a widow by the death of her husband at Val-Sainte-Marie, France, where he had a summer residence. The letters sent to friends and acquaintances announcing the death were in the names of Mrs. Mifflin and her son, Madison, Iron, Reynolds and Perry.

ALL SIGN FAIL IN DRY TIMES.

From the Washington Post.

"As goes Illinois, so goes the Union," says the Baltimore American. Four years ago the Democrats incidentally dropped a similar remark, but they were then in the minority and the other side was the one to do.

It seems to require a great deal of explanation in the Republic to give the result of the Illinois election.

"The Infants' School"

Some shocking revelations were made in England, a case which came before Mr. T. T. Hall, magistrate. A man named Parkes was charged with selling intoxicating drink without a license. The chief constable stated that the defendant kept a house of a most disreputable character, and harbored girls of evil to frequent his house. A. K. Kennedy said that the prisoner had harbored as many as fourteen girls, of tender years, in his house at once. She had seen no go to his house and ask for their children, and they had received gross language from him. The chief constable said that the spector Elliot said that the defendant's house was commonly known as the "Infants' School." Witness, on one occasion, entered the house in search of a girl whom mother had been inquiring for him, and found four or five fifteen-year-old girls, not one of them more than fifteen years of age, who were all leading an immoral life. The chief constable said: "It was believed that some of these girls had been abducted. In fact, he had a son, and he had a daughter very recently, and he was determined to put a stop to the school if he could. After the prisoner abandoned the school was broken up, and the prisoners were not turned into a joinder's shop. The defendant, who had been repeatedly fined for offenses against the Licensor, act, was again fined $100 or six months' imprisonment."

CITY NEWS.

Philip Ryburn, a 6-year-old boy, broke his arm while playing at the Wayman Crow School yesterday.

Henry C. Shaffer's photograph gallery, No. 2405 North Broadway, was burglarized and robbery.

John Derwiler, who lives at No. 154 South Second street, had three fingers cut off in a machine at the Missouri Cars Works yesterday.

A cold front picked up and Richard Nicker, a boy, was severely injured by headlamps at Fourth and Fenton streets yesterday.

An attempt to commit suicide on the part of an erring girl named Mamie Miller, No. 29 South Eighth street, failed yesterday.

A crop house belonging to Wm. Curtis and Ed. Naber was raided last night by Ferguson Ship and squad and twenty-one players were pulled.

Henry Schreider, while asleep last night, rolled over a chair at his home, No. 1532 Franklin street, and was so badly injured that he died soon afterward.

A fire of obscure origin destroyed the frame paint-spraying shop in front of the Wabash company at the corner of Main and Benton streets last night. Loss about $2,000.

Bridgewater & Tyler's saloon on Lucas avenue was burglarized. Andrew and George Gilliam and Robert Lee were arrested last night and locked up to answer for the burglary.

Ben Brockmeyer was buried by the falling walls of an excavation in which he was working, corner of Franklin and Benton avenues yesterday. When taken out he was dead.

A horse belonging to Dodd, Brown & Co. was precipitated into one of their cars on Tuesday evening in the rear of their office. He was hit with great difficulty, but was uninjured.

Engelbert Kuntz was arrested yesterday on a charge of stealing a pocket-book and $50 from a stable property was found in the trunk of Kuntz.

A 3-year-old child named Sophia Ostermayer died yesterday morning at No. 2010 North Thirtieth street as a result of burns inflicted August 25, when she was scalded by a charcoal furnace, and a kettle of boiling water.

The rod of a disorganized troupe on a freight car on the Poplar street track tore up one of the rails of the Poplar street track yesterday afternoon. The three cars of the train were thrown off. Fourth street was blocked for half an hour.

Officer Downey is charged with making a brutal assault on a woman, Mrs. E. A. B. Garsche, who was playing with matches yesterday at home, No. 1108 Chestnut street. He is to stand trial in the room, including its own. Mrs. Garsche rushed to the child's assistance, and although she herself was badly burned, the child escaped with but slight injury. An engine company was summoned and the damage was limited to $100.

Yesterday morning a loaded wagon of the Mississippian Club burst and exploded, killing a coal wagon and Anton Loos, the driver of the vehicle, who was thrown out. He fell out in front of the horses, which passed over him, killing him almost immediately. The wagon was at the corner of Tenth and Salisbury streets.

A petition has been forwarded to the postal authorities in Washington by the Merchants' Exchange, praying that the action be taken to improve the mail facilities of the business part of the city. The special improvements called for are those which the local Post Office officials have lately devised—namely, the establishment of a more rapid and general distribution of the more important character of mail.

The Salmagundi Club held a reception last night, Wm. D. Streeter acting as host, and Irving's "Pride of the Village" being the subject of the sketches. The performers were A. B. C. Green, J. R. Meeker, L. P. Annan, Mat. Hastings, Ernest Albert, J. Birkenhead, John H. Wilson, F. M. Chambers, G. E. Wingfoot and wife, Hastings, Neb., and Alfred Ponderox, Mrs. H. Robinson, Will D. Ford, F. C. Moore, and R. R. Clark.

The Mexican veterans last night met to further arrangements for the reunion to be held from October 5 to 11. A number of letters were received from veterans in various parts of the country, indicating interest in the meeting. It was stated that there was good reason to expect a large number of veterans who fought on the Mexican side to attend. The Mexican Consul offered the use of the rooms of the consulate for reception purposes. Favorable reports were made by the committee on transportation, and the committee on hotel accommodations, and the anxiety of a great success was largely increased.

All But Mohmed.

Rev. Henry Ross, of Carpenter's, who varies the life of a newspaper carrier and correspondent with occasional exhortation as a minister of the gospel, was divorced recently from his wife because she charged him with too great intimacy with his stepdaughter. The divorce dissolved him for marrying again, hence after forming a new attachment he left his wife for several seasons connected with the Olympia theater in this city, and was a great favorite and received much applause for his clever picturing of numerous characters parts. After this he made a great hit in "A Merry Wives of Windsor" as Skippy Smith, and since then has been starring on his own hook, being especially clever in such parts as the Bohemian in "Rooms to Rent." This last led to the arrest of William Ross, who took her over to Belleville and married her. Then he returned to his house in Carondelet last night, where they had a long talk, and the wife, who was still in the town, heard the news. The wife's heart was broken, and amid all the tears the wife's husband could only hear. The wife's heart was invisible. The police finally appeared and discovered the crowd, but there is reason to believe that this will find the town uninhabitable.
